NASA SCIENTIST HOISTS CO-WORKER'S SKIRT

– with anti-gravity chip!

By MARS CARRE
Weekly World News

A NASA scientist was suspended without pay and is expected to be fired after he hoisted a co-worker's skirt with an experimental anti-gravity disk while dozens of hooting, hollering and cat-calling comrades watched, say sources.

Nobody at the space agency is speaking publicly pending the outcome of an internal investigation.

But insiders confirm that "a respected, middle-aged physicist taped a dime-size, super-conducting, floating disk" to the hem of an assistant's skirt and lifted it via remote control, exposing what one stunned eyewitness called "a well-worn pair of thong panties."

The prank is said to have "shocked" NASA brass at Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., where the incident is alleged to have occurred.

VELONIA AIKEN

"I assure you, we are not taking this lightly," a NASA official speaking on condition of anonymity told reporters in Washington.

"We've got enough problems getting Congress to support space programs without having to explain away something like this."

According to sources, the heavily drawn unfolded on the morning of Nov. 2 when the researcher in NASA's top secret anti-gravity program smuggled the futuristic floating disk out of a laboratory.

He reportedly crept up behind Velonia Aiken — a shapely woman in her early 30s — while she worked at her desk.

According to a preliminary report that was leaked to the press, "The scientist crouched beside the woman and affixed the disk to the hem of her long 'peasant style' skirt without her realizing it.

"A few minutes later, Ms. Aiken got up from her desk and walked toward the mail room. The scientist stood about 20 feet away with a remote control and lifted her calf length skirt completely over her head."

Aiken reportedly "screamed and tried to push down" her skirt only to have the scientist raise it again with his remote control.

"There must have been 25 people in the hallway laughing and whistling and clapping and pointing like kids on a schoolyard," said the source.

"The scientist tried to smooth things over, but it was too late," the source continued. "The woman was completely humiliated."

NASA's anti-gravity program — and the existence of the experimental disks that might one day lead to the kind of "super technology" the space agency needs to build a flying saucer — were revealed to the public for the first time in a news release hailing the merits and successes of the program in late October, just days before the incident.

The prank-playing scientist has been suspended without pay and likely will be transferred or fired because of the incident.

EVER since Marilyn Monroe's dress flew up in The Seven Year Itch, men have desperately been dreaming up ways to look up women's dresses.

PRANKS COMMON AMONG NASA SCIENTISTS

If you think that the pioneers that be in NASA are a bunch of stiff and serious eggheads — think again. The scientists are notorious for their pranks and practical jokes.

- Before an important space test, a scientist filled one of the astronauts' oxygen masks with Face Spray!
- One NASA prankster mounted an action figure from one of the Alien movies into the control room of the Mars Pathfinder spacecraft.
- Someone stuck a bumper sticker on the back of a space shuttle that read, "How's my driving? Call 1-800-EAT-SHIT"!
- Last year, when tensions with China were running extremely high, somebody dumped a bucket of water on the head of a Chinese astronaut.

Campus bigwigs in Valley College are setting a 4-mph speed limit for wheelchair users.

Pope's a priest!

As if the Catholic church wasn't getting enough bad publicity these days, now comes the news that one priest is a pope!

Sandra Vega Martinez of Madrid found out after five years of wedded bliss and one child, that her husband was a practicing clergyman.

He told her he was a businessman who traveled out of town a lot. But the fatherly father was really attending to his parishioners in another city.

Sounds like this is one priest who really has some explaining to do!

A robbery rebate

A New Jersey man who got robbed in 1982 was paid back by the crook — 20 years later!

Vincent Celebrin, 73, checked his mail one day and found a letter with an apology from the crook and a money order for $400 attached.

"It was a message from God that not everyone is bad or locked up," Celebrin says.

It was in the early eighties that the thief had stolen Celebrin's coin collection, which was worth more than $400.

The confessing crook wasn't stupid enough to include his return address so the police could "thank" him personally.

There was some disgruntled reader giving Sonya Sobak a hard time about taking advantage of Serena's misfortune. Just tell Sonya to do her thing and have that reader kiss a frog.

Thanks up for your "Keeping Up With The Joneses," but we were saddened that you overlooked gumshoe detective Barnaby Jones and just-plain gummy shoes Jerry Jones of the Dallas Cowboys! And how could we forget Ed "Too Tall" Jones?

Who's your daddy?

By BEATRICE DEXTER

Bad news for dads: The kids you're raising may not be your own!

A shocking new study reveals that one in ten kids is being raised by a man who thinks he's Dad — but isn't!

Researchers say many women with steady partners get frisky around the time they are ovulating, and search for sex with a male who has especially masculine features, even if he's not their husband. When they're not ovulating, they want a less macho guy.

The startling findings were reached by scientists at the University of Stirling in England who compared the sexual preferences of women who were ovulating — and therefore at a peak period of fertility — with women who were not ovulating.

Both groups were shown adjustable computer images of a man that they could make appear more or less masculine by changing the squareness of the jaw, the thickness of the neck and other features.

The scientists found that women in the fertile stage of their monthly cycles developed a strong preference for men with heavily masculine features, while those not ovulating preferred men with slightly more feminine traits.

Scientists theorize that women who are ripe to make babies may be unconsciously driven by instinct to search for masculine men with genes that produce a healthier, stronger child.

At other times they gravitate toward men with less testosterone who are more likely to stick around home and care for them and their offspring.

The consequences of women's secret drive to find macho men are alarming, because studies suggest one out of every 10 kids is being raised by a man who is unaware that he's not the child's father. One man who described to an interviewer his shock when genetic tests revealed one of his boys was not his.

"I couldn't believe it," Wise said, adding that he was even more stunned when subsequent DNA tests of his other two boys revealed not one of his three sons had been fathered by him.

AGE 18

SHEFFIELD, England — She's less than 3 feet tall, weighs only 28 pounds, and is happiest when she's with her mum and dad. Tanya Donaldson has Donaldson's Syndrome — a condition so rare, doctors have named it after her because she's the only person in the world who has it!

It's a growth disorder caused by an abnormal set of chromosomes, and it means Tanya's body will never get any bigger than a toddler's. And her mind won't develop any further either.

But her parents, 34-year-old Carol and 32-year-old Dave, are brimming with love for their little girl. They're happy to have her in their lives, even though her condition has caused many heartbreaking medical problems.

The only sorrow they feel is for Tanya, who doesn't know that other girls her age are dating and going out to clubs and parties while she's still playing with toys. "I do feel a pang of sadness when I see teen-age girls going out and enjoying themselves," Carol admits. "But deep down I know Tanya loves life in her way, too."

Tanya is the youngest of three children, with a 14-year-old brother and 14-year-old sister. They were born completely healthy, but Carol's pregnancy with Tanya was a difficult one. The syndrome was diagnosed with extensive tests after Tanya was born.

There's more to Tanya's condition than being unable to grow. She had three life-threatening illnesses before age 5, and a stroke at age 12. She developed arthritis, cannot walk and is almost completely deaf in both ears.

"At times I thought, 'Why did I have her when she is suffering so much?'" says Carol, who was a geriatric nurse before Tanya was born and now is with her daughter full-time. "But when I looked at her trusting face, I always felt a warm glow inside."

Says Dave, a foreman in the steel industry: "The first years of Tanya's life were difficult, but she always amazed us and fought back. Nothing would keep her down."

Tanya's parents try as much as possible to treat her like an 18-year-old rather than a toddler. Carol tries to buy her trendy teen clothes instead of toddler wear, and they take Tanya almost any place where 18-year-olds go — including the local pub. Carol carries Tanya's birth certificate to answer the inevitable questions.

"I've always tried to make Tanya's life as pleasurable as possible," says Carol, "and incredibly, I've never seen her shed a tear.

"Sometimes she gets frustrated because she can only say a few words, but other than that she is a happy little girl with a smile for everyone."

Tanya's happiest in the arms of her parents.

PRISON POSTERS TEACH CONS HOW TO HANG THEMSELVES!

LONDON — A controversial poster campaign aims to show inmates one way of coping with overcrowding in British prisons.

The message: How to hang yourself in your prison cell!

Martin Narley, director general of the British prison service, came up with the idea, but claims he's trying to help inmates rather than encourage suicides.

The grisly posters are intended to "shock and grab young peoples' attention and get them to take the danger to themselves seriously," Narley says. But Frances Crook, director of the Howard League for Penal Reform, says the posters are "sick."

Eighty-nine people have killed themselves in British prisons this year, and Narley claims hangings are becoming common.

Britain's current prison population of 72,000 could leap to 100,000, officials predict. Some [illegible]

10 ways to tell if your co-worker is an extraterrestrial!

Weekly World News

BOCA RATON — Many top scientists believe that aliens live secretly among us. The sneaky intergalactic travelers often pose as our friends, neighbors and co-workers while they learn the ways of Earth. But how can you tell invading aliens from real humans?

Weekly World News has interviewed dozens of experts and conducted exhaustive research to bring you this list of the top ten ways to recognize aliens in our midst.

1 Aliens often wear huge sunglasses to hide their eyes. Most aliens have large, staring eyes that are hard to conceal. Sunglasses help them appear more normal.

2 Aliens have cold and clammy skin. Many aliens wear spa on their skin in order to pass themselves off as human. It's never as warm as real skin, and it often feels "slimy" to the touch.

3 They smell. Aliens use all manner of deodorants, perfumes, or lotions to disguise their natural scent, which is offensive to humans.

4 Aliens are obsessed with technology. They spend hours chatting on cell phones and sending e-mails. But they're not conversing with people — they're actually transmitting data they've accumulated back to their home worlds.

5 Aliens have strange bodily proportions. The smartest breeds of aliens attempt to imitate human appearance — but they never quite get it right. They are like exaggerated ideas of human portion. Their stomachs are too flat, their chests too big, their faces wrinkle-free.

6 Aliens have strange diets. Aliens may not be able to digest most human foods. [illegible] chicken — that's an alien favorite.

7 Aliens dance in inhuman ways. Most alien species have a completely different physiology than ours. They have the ability to move their bodies to music in a way no ordinary human can, and this results in a dancing style that is quite breathtaking.

8 Aliens do not understand Earth's sense of humor. Forget what you saw on Mork and Mindy. Aliens find it difficult to understand laughter — even a simple knock-knock joke can throw them completely off. They might laugh at inappropriate times — like during a funeral — or stare blankly at the funniest jokes.

9 Aliens dress in oddly revealing clothes. Aliens find clothing irritates their flesh, so the less of it they wear the more comfortable they are. They also like to keep their fake human skin exposed to air to allow it to breathe.

10 Aliens ask hundreds of questions. Aliens are on earth for research, and they want to learn as much as possible about Earthlings. They're like alien anthropologists, fascinated by human behavior and eager to study our culture. So keep your eyes open for any people asking a lot of nosy questions.

COWBOY CUPID WILL LASSO YOU A DATE!

COLUMBUS, N.M. — Straight-shooting Ivan Thompson is the wildest matchmaker in the West. Known as the Cowboy Cupid, he's lassoed the hearts of hundreds of women and saddled up each of them with a lonely buckeroo looking for love!

Thompson matches American men who want to get hitched with Mexican, Honduran and other Latin gals looking for a husband.

But the Cowboy Cupid has a unique way of rounding up brides.

He doesn't just flash a bunch of photos of pretty women and expect you to do the rest, but will personally escort you into a foreign land to meet your future sisters.

It's the sort of git-movin' thing you have to do to find the gal of your dreams, says Thompson. Cattle don't walk up and ask you to brand them, and love doesn't just stroll in and say howdy.

"That is straight running bull," he snorts. "You can die of old age before someone knocks on your door who likes you and you like her back."

Thompson specializes in foreign brides because they're the kind of women his clients are looking for: "A woman who

THE COWBOY Cupid, Ivan Thompson, says that "loneliness is a bad disease" and his book, left, will help single people cure it.

"When the women in this country started working, I think that it hurt the United States so bad we can't build prisons fast enough."

But that does not mean Latin women are shy and submissive, Thompson warns. "The Mexican women most of all aren't like us gringos think they are," he warns. "They like to run things."

Thompson has plenty to say and not just about love and marriage. He's a real cowboy who's spent much of his life working on the range, and like most cowboys he's full of colorful yarns and homespun wisdom.

He's put his life story — with advice on finding your very own South of the Border sweetheart — into a book called Cowboy Cupid.

It's a rollicking trip through often-hilarious look at love and how to find it.

"Loneliness is a bad disease," says Thompson. "There are no pills or medicine for it. If you are lonely, this book will help show you a way to cure it."

WE TOLD AMERICA ABOUT CLONING CULT TWO YEARS AGO!

RAEL, founder and spiritual leader of the cult, is pictured in front of a full-size model of the Raelian spaceship.

BOCA RATON — The media has been buzzing with excitement over the announcement of the birth of the first human clone, in a project launched by the Raelian UFO cult. But Weekly World News first revealed the intentions of the Raelians nearly two years ago!

On April 17, 2001, we reported, "Backed by a whopping $500,000 from an American couple grieving the death of their infant daughter, UFO cultists are preparing to duplicate the child — with the same technique used to create the world's first successful animal clone."

DR. BRIGITTE Boisselier is CEO of Clonaid.

And now the UFO cult is back, shocking the world over Christmas week with the unexpected announcement a cloned baby named Eve has been born to an American woman, and that mother and child are safe and healthy.

Scientists, politicians, clergy and newspaper pundits have reacted with shock and outrage to the Dec. 27, 2002 announcement by Clonaid, a company associated with the Raelian UFO cultists.

When the West Virginia operation was forced to close by the FDA, Clonaid moved its work to either Nevada or a site overseas, according to press reports and sketchy announcements by Clonaid CEO and spokeswoman Dr. Brigitte Boisselier.

A REAL HERO Vasha the cat was killed protecting his master from thieves.

ULYANOVSK, Russia — A courageous cat saved his master from a brutal attack by thieves, and was killed in the struggle.

"They found poor little Vasha on the floor, dead," says a neighbor.

Cops say thieves forced their way into the 40-year-old man's home and demanded money. But he fought the nasty and paid no heed, refusing except a few coins for buying bread and milk.

One of the vicious intruders picked up an ax and swung it at the man.

That's when the feisty feline swung into action and leaped onto the attacker's face, painfully digging in her claws. The man dropped in shock, giving Vasha's master a chance to escape.

The terrified man ran to the police, who followed him back to his home. When they arrived, they found the robbers had fled — leaving Vasha's broken body on the floor.

Self-defense course for RAPISTS has women hopping mad!

LOS ANGELES — Fighting-mad feminists want to deliver a knockout blow to an outrageous new self-defense class for men — against women!

The controversial Male Self [redacted] seminar is taught by a karate black belt — who insists that 30 years of [redacted] arts training for women has "unfairly tipped the scales" and made the streets too dangerous for men.

"Guys are being badly injured — there've been eyes gouged out, ruptured testicles, shattered [redacted] and blows that require dozens of stitches," says Jerry Peterson, creator of the seminar.

"All I'm trying to do is teach guys how to protect themselves from serious injury, whether they're abused husbands or wimps."

Women's groups and victims' rights organizations are up in arms.

"Mr. Peterson's course specifically targets women as enemies," blasts a spokeswoman for the California Alliance of Sex Crime Victims. "It's quite obvious rapists and other creeps are taking advantage of his course."

Peterson insists he's doing nothing to encourage rapists to take the class — and argues that his course may actually cut down the number of attacks.

"You have to understand that most of these men have low self-esteem to begin with. When some fifty woman beats them to a pulp, the psychological trauma is severe and it begins the cycle all over again," he says.

"My classes give them confidence — they feel like real men."

self-defense moves in which techniques specially designed to counter a raging female [redacted] also [redacted] besieged males how to disarm a woman wielding a can of mace or heavy purse.

Men who've taken the seminar give it an enthusiastic thumbs up.

"Last year I was brutalized by a woman," says Jeff Hanson, 32, of Los Angeles. "She broke my collarbone, busted my lip and gave me two black eyes. Afterward, I felt humiliated and ashamed — like I wasn't man enough to overcome some 5-foot-2 girl.

"I can't wait to see the look on a broad's face when she throws me over her shoulder and I flip her right back!"

STOP THE MADNESS!

Do you think that self-defense classes for men against women should be banned? If so, fill out the coupon below and mail it in. We'll forward all the letters we receive to the appropriate authorities.

To whom it may concern:

I was outraged to hear about the new seminars for rapists in your state. Please ban these classes before it's too late!

Beat terrorism – PUT A PIG ON EVERY PLANE!

I'M MADDER than Porky Pig at a ham-eating contest over this new government report warning that Al Qaeda is just as dangerous as ever!

That means that a year of airport strip searches, red, yellow and pink alerts, new federal agencies and getting your nose-hair trimmer taken away every time you board a plane, hasn't done squat. You're still just as likely to get blown to kingdom come by a fellow passenger with nitroglycerine in his shoes.

Well, yours truly has come up with a way of making air travel safe again: Put a pig on every plane.

You heard me right, buckaroos. Everyone knows Muslim fanatics loathe, hate and abhor pigs — bringing a pig around them is like waving a cross in front of a vampire.

No sane al Qaeda terrorist will step foot on a plane if he knows there's a pig in the cockpit next to the pilot like mascots. And every so often, the stewardesses can lead them down the aisle on leashes.

But airplanes are just the beginning, folks. We can also put pigs on every subway car, bus and in every public building in the whole country. Pig decoys will have to get the nation on the road. If some guy with a passport and ticket tries to board without one, guards can shove him in the back.

Anytime you walk in a post office and see Babe the pig, or guard dogs, you'll breathe a little easier.

Pretty soon the humble pig will become a symbol of security and Americans might even start eating more pork to show their support.

Heck, I'm 72 years old and I've never even seen one of those get-darned ugly birds. Have you? The pig is much more down to earth.

And then, an added wrinkle we can use pigs against the enemy. I say let's make it mandatory that every restaurant meal be cooked in a lotsa pig fat, just like we used to do back home.

Then, when the Muslim terrorists are strapped silly at a Taco Bell, we'll be there

Bank robber busted after he reports his car

SAO PAULO, Brazil — A suspected robber outsped the cops who were chasing him, but still ended up behind bars.

He actually went to the police station to report his car had been stolen!

The newspaper Jornal do Tarde reports that the man was one of three who got away from cops after robbing a restaurant. A few hours later, the unidentified robber walked into the police station for help with his stolen car.

"We could not believe our eyes when we saw him," a police spokesman tells the paper.

Runners forget glasses — can't find course

NOTTINGHAMSHIRE, England — A cross-country race had two overweight jocks running in circles for hours because they'd forgotten their glasses and couldn't read the course map!

Barry Bolford and Lee Huxley ran 10 miles — 3½ miles more than the 30 they'd planned to do — when they got hopelessly lost for more than 1½ hours.

They were among 240 people doing the run in the English countryside. They both need glasses but didn't bring them. So when they fell behind the other runners, they couldn't figure out where to go.

"It was all our fault," embarrassed Barry admits to The Sun newspaper. "The organizers put up signs marking the route and gave us maps, but we couldn't read them."

It was 1:30 a.m. when they finally found the finish line — and they had to call the race organizers for a ride home.

BUFFALO GROVE, Ill. — Two joyriding teens caught their crime on tape — which made it easy for the cops to catch the kids!

Cops in the Chicago suburb say the 15-year olds taped themselves cruising around in a car they'd stolen. They also taped themselves commenting on the crime.

But they forgot to take the tape with them when they abandoned the car. Cops

THE WORLD'S MOST INCREDIBLE CRIME REPORTS

WOMAN KILLS 4 NEIGHBORS WITH POISONED POT OF FOOD!

Masumi Hayashi reveals pan expect to be executed by hanging, which is how death sentences are carried out in Japan.

WAKAYAMA CITY, Japan — A woman will be executed for killing four of her neighbors with a pot of poisoned curry!

Masumi Hayashi, 49, was convicted of killing the four — including two children — when she served them curry laced with arsenic at a summer festival.

The deadly dish also made 63 other people seriously ill.

Prosecutors argued that Hayashi, an insurance saleswoman, decided to poison her neighbors because they were snubbing her. But Hayashi has always maintained her innocence, pleading not guilty at the trial.

She was unable to convince a jury, which found her guilty.

Hayashi will probably be hanged, which is the usual form of execution in Japan.

CROOKS STRIP CLUB FULL OF SWINGERS ...of all their cash and jewelry!

MAINZAL (Rhineland-Palatinate), Germany — Two armed robbers stripped jewelry and cash from a nightclub where their victims already were bare. It was a swingers' club and no one had a clue as to when the crooks burst in!

Right away the robbers held a gun to the club manager's head and then forced the couple swingers to empty jewelry and cash from the club's safe and lockers.

Police say they're having a hard time interviewing victims about the amount of the stolen loot because they're too embarrassed to go to the police.

HELP nab this fugitive who's accused of trying to kill a police officer and you could earn $10,000.

The FBI says Coombs, 43, is a notorious white supremacist with extreme religious and anti-government beliefs. He's charged with shooting a Missouri state police officer in the chest, after the officer arrested one of Coombs' pals.

The officer survived, but Coombs is wanted for first degree assault of a law enforcement officer. He's been on the run since October 1994.

Coombs is 5-foot-7 and weighs 140 pounds, with brown hair and blue eyes. He's balding and was last seen with a full beard — but is known to alter his appearance with beards, mustaches and glasses.

He has used several aliases besides his real one, including Col Liberty, Col Liberty, William Patterson, James Wilson and James Mason.

Coombs should be considered armed and dangerous — he's known to carry guns in an ankle holster and in the small of his back.

NEW U.S. WEAPON IN WAR ON TERROR . . .

KILLER BEES!

New strain is 100 times more deadly than their African cousins!

WASHINGTON — The U.S. military is unleashing a new secret weapon that will put the sting on Saddam Hussein and his Al Qaeda buddies — a lethal new strain of killer bees!

That's the buzz from the Pentagon where excited officials say tests show the genetically enhanced creatures, developed under a secret program code named "Operation Super Stinger," are the perfect killing machines.

"This is a new breed of killer bees, a hundred times more deadly than any that have gone before," boasts one geneticist who developed the invincible insects. "One sting can kill a grown man in seconds."

Best of all, the bees need no training — they simply enter a cave and sting every living creature inside. After it's all over the bees and all the people in the cave are dead.

Deluded Pentagon officials say the all-natural, organic [illegible] creating a fraction of the cost of nuclear weapons — and is actually far more effective than any existing man-made device.

So far the U.S. military has conducted several tests in Afghanistan, employing wheeled robots to transport hives of bees, and hives filled with Al Qaeda terrorists. Once inside the caves, the robots release the bees and [illegible] they [illegible] Then [illegible] Bingo, cave full of dead [illegible] and they don't stop until every man in the cave is dead.

The problems involved with the project relate to extremely dangerous bees to be transported. The transport robots are sealed so the bees [illegible] through them, they're [illegible] inside. So once the heat activates the bees and [illegible] there's no [illegible]

Killer bees were first born in the mid-1950s when Brazilian scientists attempted to create a new breed that would produce more honey. They [illegible] escaped, and gradually established colonies throughout South and Central America.

Experts have described the original killer bee as being "aggressive, easily agitated ... a bee with a hair-trigger temper." One geneticist involved with the Super Stinger project notes: "These new bees make the original killer bees look like wimps."

A Pentagon source adds: "America's enemies will get an ugly surprise when thousands of killer bees descend on their caves. They won't know what hit them."

What's the difference between killer bees and regular honeybees?

Killer bees . . .

- Are more aggressive.
- Attack in larger groups.
- Chase victims for greater distances.
- Have a more painful sting.
- Are more likely to sting repeatedly.
- Are more likely to leave their hive.
- Are more likely to swarm.
- Are more likely to kill.

HOW TO GET WHAT YOU WANT

— without being pushy!

YOU CAN get what you want by learning how to assert yourself — without sounding pushy, says top psychologist Judith Meyerowitz, just by following these simple tips:

● Keep the overall tone of your conversation and body language low-key. "Don't point your finger, pound the table or pass the buck." If you are too aggressive, you will "have the other person split."

● Accentuate the positive. "If you want to go back to school because you're bored, don't tell your husband, 'I'm very unhappy as a housewife.' Instead, point out that you're so efficient you can take care of [redacted] house and [redacted] children."

● Make direct eye contact. "It's crucial. If you start looking away or looking around the room, it shows you're not committed."

● Consider the other person's viewpoint. "When you appreciate someone's different point of view, he feels accepted and appreciated, making it harder for him to say no."

● Figure out what the other person's objections will be before you push for something — and be prepared to deal with them.

● Don't assume the other person will say no. "If you anticipate rejection, you'll be afraid to say what you want."

● Pick the right time to push. "Ask for things when you're likely to be heard — for example, when the other person is in a good mood. Timing is just as important as tact."

Dr. Meyerowitz says that if you don't get what you want the first time, don't give up. But in order to not be pushy, wait awhile and try again — and be better prepared next time.

MAN USES HIS HIP BONE AS A WALKING STICK!

GREAT BIRTHAM, England — Would you believe it? A man has a walking stick made out of his own hip bone!

Ian Sutherland, 61, asked doctors to save the bone when he had a hip-replacement operation.

The retired landscape gardener got the idea from one of his vets, an archaeologist.

"I'm really pleased with it," he says. "It's great to find a practical use for a discarded part of your own body, and it serves as a reminder of my own mortality."

Townsfolk party by hurling rocks at each other!

PANDHURNA, India — "Getting stoned" doesn't necessarily have anything to do with drugs in this village.

It has to do with the annual Gotmaar festival -- which the men in town celebrate by throwing rocks at each other!

Townsfolk don't explain why, but they explain that the goal is to injure as many persons as possible. The last festival was a huge success. More than 500 people were hurt, some seriously.

All eligible the injured receive medical attention and soon life returns to normal ... whatever "normal" is in Pandhurna.

RUSSIANS BUILD FLOATING NUCLEAR POWER PLANTS!

MOSCOW — The people who brought you the Chernobyl nuclear disaster have come up with another colossal moral! Floating nuclear power plants!

Russia is beginning construction on the world's first floating nuclear plants, designed to supply energy to remote, ice-bound regions.

Each plant will be similar to the ice-class powered icebreakers Russia already employs in the polar seas. The plan is to use the floating nuclear facilities to control areas where they will provide power and heat through cables linking them to the mainland.

The floating "island" power plants are cheaper than a hydroelectric plant and can be built in less than a year, officials say.

"It costs four times less than building a nuclear power plant generating the same amount of energy on land," project boss Yevgeny Raiko told reporters.

Environmental groups such as Greenpeace have expressed concern over the safety of the floating nuclear plants.

HEY DUDES AND DUDETTES! Here I am, back for another week of super psychic advice while my sister, Serena, continues to duck all She's supposedly still recovering from her coma, but if you ask me she's afraid to come back because she knows she can't compete with America's new favorite psychic — little ol' me! So keep those cards and letters coming, gang, and I'll do all I can to make your lives extra special. Love, Tanya Who's been stealing from me?

Dear Tanya: I am 73 years old and live on a fixed income. Someone has been coming into my house and taking my things. I think it's my neighbor, but I'm not sure. Can you tell me who has been stealing from me and how I can stop them? — Worried Mill in Alabama

Dear Worried: We [illegible] I consulted my crystal ball and received [illegible] pen or the picture of [illegible] Hold on tight to your seat [illegible] [illegible] you, or [illegible] [illegible] it [illegible]

Dear Tanya: My life has [illegible] favorite one being [illegible] bad luck. I was almost [illegible] a cat last week, I lost my job, my car is sick and I haven't been feeling so well myself. I've been to several doctors but none can tell me what's wrong. I'm at the end of my rope. Please tell me, Tanya, who is God punishing me? — Getting Up in Illinois

Dear Getting Up: [illegible] your problems right [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Dear Tanya: I hope I don't sound dense when I say this, but aren't a psychic's predictions supposed to be in the future? — Curious in Seattle

Dear Curious: Thank you for the compliment. I've been telling my readers the same thing for weeks. As for your question, I do believe [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Weekly World News exclusive: The WORLD'S BIGGEST CROSSWORD!

BARE-BUTT BIG TOP

VALDIVIA, Chile — A shameless showman wants to produce a circus that'll give new meaning to "bareback riding" — all the performers will be naked!

"I'm fed up with the same old boring circuses," Chilean impresario John Alexanes told the newspaper La Cuarta. "People go to the circus to relax, and I want to send them away amused and with smiles on their faces."

Alexanes says his revolting Adam and Eve Circus will have trapeze artists, animal tamers, acrobats and other acts wearing no costumes except their birthday suits.

Even the clowns will be nude, he notes. "They'll be wearing their make-up and nothing else."

The bare-butt Big Top isn't for audiences looking for cheap thrills: the show runs seven hours.

"This is not going to be vulgar," he insists. "This is going to be a high-quality spectacle."

"We are going to revolutionize the circus industry," Alexanes vows. "Whereas before, seven other were good, now they will perform naked."

The Adam and Eve Circus was scheduled to open in Valdivia last year, but was delayed due to an accident involving a female knife-thrower and her male assistant.

Alexanes predicts great success for his circus in the buff. "It'll be the first circus where the animals are wearing more than the people."

Adolf Hitler was born in Germany

SEBRACH, Germany — Adolf Hitler was a Bavarian-born German, a new book on Adolf Hitler reports. He was born in Germany, rather than Austria, as historians previously believed.

The book is one of more than 140 recently published on a new round of Hitler history flowing from Germany.

The book says the notorious dictator was born in Shicklgruber, Austria, on April 20, 1889, to Alois Shicklgruber and Klara Poelzl.

— NOT AUSTRIA!

Bavarian historian Werner Maser will be greatly relieved if the shocking revelation turns out to be true.

"It is a revelation if it is true Hitler was born in Germany," he says. "This would end long-standing confusion of its connection with Hitler.

HARPO MARX WAS A U.S. SPY

HOLLYWOOD — Funnest funnyman Harpo Marx got more than laughs out of the Russian people when he toured the Soviet Union nearly 70 years ago.

He also got state secrets out of the Communist country, working as a U.S. spy — who smuggled the documents in his socks!

Newly released documents show that Harpo, one of the best-loved stars of the legendary Marx Brothers comedy team, was recruited in 1933.

The U.S. ambassador to Moscow asked him to take some "diplomatic mail" back home in his socks.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover sent Harpo a letter in 1940, congratulating the silent artist and harpist on his "loyal past service" to his country.

LEGENDARY comic actor Harpo was praised for his loyal service

"We have had some really great results on it and I think it's going to make a big splash," he was quoted as saying in the Washington Times.

But a Republican congressman who learned of the dubious investment of taxpayer money called the research project "disgusting."

DEAD OR ALIVE?

By BRETT ALAN
Weekly World News

They were creepy and kooky, mysterious and ooky — and altogether one of the funniest bunches of freaks on TV. Based on the New Yorker cartoons by Charles Addams, the 1964-66 sitcom The Addams Family also spawned two successful feature films in the 1990s. The sinister sitcom starred, seated from left, LISA LORING (Wednesday Thursday Addams); CAROLYN JONES (Morticia Addams); KEN WEATHERWAX (Pugsley Addams) and, standing from left, JACKIE COOGAN (Uncle Fester Frump), JOHN ASTIN (Gomez Addams), BLOSSOM ROCK (Grandmama) and TED CASSIDY (Lurch, the 6-foot-9-inch butler)

BAT BOY STILL ON THE LAM!

Pointy-eared car thief continues to wreak havoc & evade police in 11 states!

PENSACOLA, Fla. — More than two weeks after the mysterious Bat Boy carjacked a brand new Mini Cooper, flustered lawmen are no closer to apprehending the elusive bat-like freak — who has been spreading panic and chaos in a wild and woolly chase that's taken him through 11 states!

The bizarre odyssey began when the pointy-eared mutant stole the cut-throat Detroit-deal-ership, as Weekly World News reported in our January 14 edition.

Since then, a special law enforcement task force tracking him through his calls to police from startled citizens says he's traveled through Michigan, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi — clocked at speeds of up to 110 mph.

Authorities say they're frustrated that Bat Boy has escaped all their roadblocks and well-armed police helicopters. "He's always one step ahead of us," moans FBI Special Agent Jack Bomber.

BAT ON THE RUN! This incredible photo was snapped by a camper in the woods of Alabama, as Bat Boy ran to his car and made a quick getaway.

Bat Boy was last spotted in the Florida panhandle, headed south. Among the 4,000 phone sightings reported to frazzled authorities:

● Darlington, S.C. — The stolen vehicle skidded into the Darlington raceway racetrack, interrupting trials for a NASCAR race. "The little freak almost forced me off the track," one shaken driver says. "He did not like the competition!"

● Athens, Ga. — A television news meeting ended abruptly when Bat Boy dove through the crowded tent, sending folks diving for safety.

● Tuscaloosa, Ala. — A group of campers witnessed Bat Boy playing hermit in the side of the road. A park ranger's mate, grabbing his camera and snapped a picture before Bat Boy ran back to his car and drove away.

● Vicksburg, Miss. — Civil War re-enactors were stunned when the stolen car passed through the mock battlefield, scattering Confederate and Union soldiers alike. "The guy passed General Grant as he sprinted to the exit ramp," one eyewitness Carlton Blanchard, 34, of Vicksburg.

EYEWITNESS Carlton Blanchard

● Pensacola, Fla. — A couple claim their brand-new car was snatched when Bat Boy pulled up to the sand. The 27-year-old woman told police: "He snapped my door like a rotten branch, jumped back into the car and drove away."

Law enforcement officials are asking everyone to be on the lookout for a 2003 red Mini Cooper driven by a bat-wrapped mutt about 11 years old.

"If you see Bat Boy, don't take it personally, but please call us immediately," says Special Agent Bomber.

Farmers grow monster crops with space alien poop!

By COREY MICHAELS Weekly World News

Amazing manure may spell the end of world hunger – FOREVER

DES MOINES, Iowa — Excited farmers are claiming to have grown 25-pound heads of lettuce and 15-foot-long ears of corn after fertilizing their plants with glistening piles of poop found at UFO landing sites throughout the Midwest.

And experts say the odorless, strangely textured manure is so chock full of nutrients, it could spark an agricultural revolution that hasn't been seen since the invention of the plow.

SOME of the produce is so enormous it barely fits in the back of a truck.

"We have run numerous tests on samples of the manure, and while we are currently unable to identify certain [illegible] elements, we do know that whatever made this is almost certainly not of this Earth," says a researcher from the U.S. Department of Agriculture who spoke to Weekly World News on condition of anonymity.

"The nutrient levels off the regular graph of the charts," he continues. "If we can duplicate it in a laboratory or find it [illegible] to use on a mass scale, we could eliminate world hunger within a couple of growing seasons. The new vegetables [illegible] big for men to carry around with little effort."

The E.T. excrement is apparently being dispersed during interplanetary "pit stops" aliens say.

Flabbergasted farmer Stu Hardig says he shoveled several bucketfuls out of his cornfield last August — and now has 15-foot-long ears of corn as well as 10 feet long on a greenhouse that adjoins his house.

STU Hardig

"Not only did it grow a ton more [illegible] of corn per [illegible] than I've ever seen, but the stalks were [illegible] and the ears were [illegible] on [illegible] stems.

"My wife grew a 25-pound head of lettuce," he says. "People are coming from miles around to see our alien-sized crops."

The eye-popping produce may not be on view for much longer. Several tons of the alien poop have been gathered and moved to a secret location, say sources, as an investigation is spearheaded by the Department of Agriculture and the FBI.

"We have no idea what long-term health hazard this substance will [illegible] ... [illegible] ... available on UFO sites.

"The samples were recovered last fall from known or suspected UFO landing sites. We've kept this under cover as long as we could, due to the potentially harmful nature of alien poop."

"You can't be too careful. It could be teeming with bacteria and viruses harmful to man."

So far, the "hot out" fertilizer has been a boon to Hardig.

"I helped myself to a few pounds of space dung before the feds got here and started hauling it all off," he reveals, beaming.

I know why the government wants to keep this stuff away from us. It's [illegible]

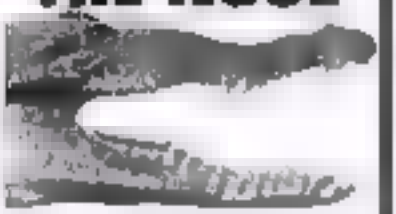
MAN BITES CROC ON THE NOSE



BLANTYRE, Malawi — A man escaped from a vicious crocodile by biting the beast on the snout!

Sources say that Mac Bonds Chewinga, 43, was swimming in a lake when a crocodile attacked. He got trapped by the croc, which pinned both of Chewinga's arms inside its powerful jaws.

The reptile was dragging him into deeper waters when Chewinga decided to fight back. He sank his teeth into the crocodile's nose.

Incredibly, the reptile released him.

Chewinga was badly injured, but still managed to swim to shore. He was found by some fishermen, who rushed

VAMPIRE CONSPIRACY

Villagers see red over government's blood-selling scheme

THE CONCEPT of vampires on the prowl with a government's support is doubly frightening.

BLANTYRE, Malawi — Fists are flying in this African community over rumors that the government is teaming up with vampires in a sick plot to trade blood for food with international aid agencies!

So far, one man has been clubbed to death, three visiting priests have been attacked and nearly lynched, and an aid group's camp was attacked because villagers thought it was vampire headquarters!

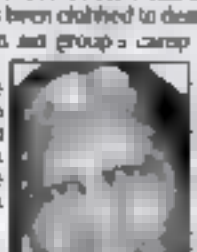
The horrifying rumors have some natives too scared to leave their church huts to tend their fields, furthering a hunger crisis which is just one of the perils threatening this dirt-poor country.

Malawi, a country in southern Africa about the size of Pennsylvania, has a population of 11 million -- 400,000 of whom are believed to be living with the HIV virus or AIDS.

Life expectancy in the country is less than 40 years, largely due to the AIDS epidemic.

President Bakili Muluzi accuses opposition politicians of spreading the vampire stories to try to undermine his government.

"No government can go about sucking blood of its own people," he said. "That's ridiculous."



MALAWI's President, Bakili Muluzi, blames the vampire rumors on propaganda from political rivals.

While the vampire stories have sent the more superstitious natives fleeing into the city of Blantyre for safety, others keep church bells ringing day and night so they can wake up the village if they suspect vampires are about to attack.

One woman claimed with pride she drilled a hole in her head and then let it heal so she could spot vampires who sneaked into her home.

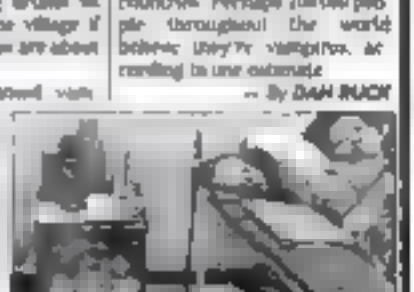
"Because of the wounds I made I could not speak for three days -- and I am still suffering from a terrible headache," she said.

Another woman showed journalists a mark on her leg she said was where vampires inserted a needle to try to draw her blood.

The rumors have enraged political leaders in the country, one of the 10 poorest in the world, where protests have already broken out over Muluzi's efforts to stay in office for another five years.

Belief in vampires isn't limited to Malawi and other African countries. Perhaps 100,000 people throughout the world believe they're vampires, according to one estimate.

-- By DAN RUCH



MALAWI vampires, generally poor and uneducated, are unable to grasp the difference between fact and urban legends.

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH CAN BE YOURS

- Special report - "The normal discovery of a new natural protein enzyme may have won a major breakthrough in health and aging", Dr. Lucas a research chemist at the National Institute of Aging, a branch of the U.S. Government's National Institute of Health. "It's a most exciting finding and it certainly looks strongly as if this enzyme is going to play an important role in reversing aging and preventing a long life" he said.

The new enzyme has a double action. One is to help people look old in their years (helping to eliminating age spots, lines and lining up skin. This is because the energy supply which drives these aging processes is replaced by pure energy that also a healthier life. And we are not just talking about a few years - we're talking about 50, 60, even potentially 100 years and more - well into the 21st and 22nd century.

According to a New York leading nutritionist and dietitian specialist "The new enzyme makes people in their 40's look like they're in their 30's, while people in their 50's may look like they're in their 40's."

An Atlanta physician will further discuss of physical health of people. But the Georgia Regional Hospital report that he has tested the effects of this enzyme on patients and "it worked miracles!"

A doctor of Osteopathy, Dr. Lucas of the International Academy of Preventive Medicine said "I have used it on over 1,000 patients. Within weeks people begin to feel healthier and stronger. Within one to three months the wrinkles and lines in their faces begin to disappear and they actually start looking younger. Their skin has a better color and their bodies become supple and more youthful. It is very definitely an anti-aging substance that slows down degenerative diseases."

Scientists believe the enzyme is a natural weapon against many enemies. It is noted that everyone must take the enzyme if we want age to prevent the longer ravages of aging, and to benefit from the enzyme's wonderful anti-aging properties.

All people, children and most animals in nature probably have enough of the new substance inside to give them a long life. "It's a miracle compound. You can literally turn back the hands of time with this new discovery!"

The new enzyme is being marketed under the trademark RENEWAL and can be ordered directly from ENGLAND INTERNATIONAL, Dept. RW-N1, PO Box 1411, Delray Beach FL 33483. (Include check, money order or VisaMC account # and exp. date. Illinois residents they also be located at 847-747-8011). 1-month supply $37.95; 3-months $94.95; 6-months

MUMMY GIVES BIRTH TO LIVE BABY!

CAIRO — The mummy is a mommy! In what is being hailed as a "medical miracle," baffled physicians have reportedly delivered a live baby boy from the womb of a woman who was mummified more than 3,000 years ago!

The amazing infant, named Tut by doctors, is underweight at just 4 pounds, 6 ounces, but is otherwise in remarkably good health, Egyptian physicians report.

"The male infant was delivered by C-section at 2:02 a.m. on January 2," confirms Dr. Moammar Hassad, who led a team of stunned obstetricians.

"He is breathing on his own, and we have every expectation that he will survive."

"This is the most incredible birth in history," raves Dr. Hassad. "It defies everything we know about the birth process.

"It also represents a quantum leap for

A TOT NAMED TUT. "The male infant was delivered by C-section at 7:03 a.m. on January 2," confirms Dr. Magdy Hassan, who led a team of obstetricians. "He is breathing on his own and we have every expectation that he will survive."

ered the one-of-a-kind mummy.

"It proves that the medicine of ancient Egypt was far, far more advanced than was previously imagined.

"At a time when much of humanity was living in caves, the Egyptians were able to preserve a woman in such a sublime state that her uterus could carry a child to term three millennia later."

It was last March that archaeologists recovered the strange female mummy from a newly discovered necropolis about 17 miles outside Cairo.

Although the mummy was not pregnant at the time, CAT scans and other tests showed that her physiology was unlike any ever before encountered. "In general, the Egyptians removed all internal organs, even the brain, prior to mummification," reveals Dr. Said.

"But in this case, all her vital organs were in place, including the heart, lungs, and what turned out to be most significant, reproductive organs such as the ovaries and fallopian tubes."

A still-unidentified liquid permeates every cell of the mummy's body and appears to be what keeps her in an extraordinary state of preservation.

"Although we've never been able to detect a heartbeat, it was almost as if she were in a state of suspended animation," notes Dr. Said.

Scientists weren't the only ones intrigued by the mysterious beauty. Janitor Debi Sitar admits that last spring, as the mummy lay on display at the National Academy of Archaeology, he visited her — and impregnated her!

Sitar, who's since been fired and arrested on criminal charges, claims he was unable to resist the mummy's charms.

"It was as if her voice was calling out to me," he said in an interview.

JANITOR Debi Sitar is in jail on criminal charges for violating the mummy.

Remarkably, scientists now suspect the petrified mummy, whose name remains unknown, may have been meant for impregnation by those who preserved her.

"The woman was about to at the time of her mummification and appears to have been the favored concubine of a court magician," says Dr. Said. "Tomb hieroglyphics refer to her as the 'sacred vessel' — implying that she was intended to bear a special child at some time in the future.

"Who knows, perhaps he is the result of Sitar's irresistible higher power drew him to the sarcophagus that day."

Just four days after Tut's birth, the Egyptian government took possession of the miracle tot and he has been installed at an undisclosed location.

The Egyptian government is refusing to discuss the case with foreign reporters.

"Because of the circumstances of Tut's conception, since devout Muslims consider him an abomination and they want him destroyed," says Dr. Said.

"The government has taken him to a place where he can be raised and educated in a protective environment. It will truly be fascinating to see what becomes of him in later years.

The answer might surprise you.

Excess tummy flab is not your fault. That's the startling conclusion reached by scientists who discovered stress is the likely cause of stubborn belly fat. But instead of simply identifying the problem... this time, they may have found the solution!

According to prominent researchers, the link between stress, tension, and excess belly fat is clear. High levels of cortisol – a nasty body stress hormone – cause pound after pound of excess body fat to accumulate around your waist and tummy ... a health-threatening, figure-destroying condition affecting an estimated 12 million American women.

Simply stated, a bulging midsection is not your fault — it's the harmful combination of a sensitive stress hinge setting, and excess cortisol... all conspiring to keep you overweight, tired, and thick around the middle.

But now you can beat stress-induced belly fat with Relacore™ – the breakthrough anti-anxiety mood elevating pill that helps cut cortisol production by short-circuiting the "stress-to-belly-fat cycle."
